

Military Parade at Homecoming

Noted Radio Star To Headline Manhattan Event

Harold Isbell

Manhattan is all set for three red letter days next week when they will hold their 4th annual homecoming on the school grounds on August 17, 18 and 19th.

The star headline attraction is Harold Isbell Day which will be Friday, August 17th when the famed radio star will be present to act as Master of Ceremonies at the afternoon and evening programs. Here are some of the outstanding facts about Harold Isbell:

He is one of the first ten radio announcers in the world and has just completed 23 years of broadcasting. Is a writer and producer of radio programs, but best known to the listener as comedian and Master of Ceremonies.

One of the first persons to ever "Ad-Lib" over the air, that was on the old Indiana Club on KFW with "Coon Sanders Famous Night Hawks" from 1 to 2 a. m. from the ballroom of the Congress hotel. Has been heard for the past ten years as one of the trio of "Happy Broadcast Rhymsters" on WBBM, WLS, WCFL, and WGN.

Has read the Tribune Evening News on WGN Sunday mornings at 11 a. m. for the past four years as "Uncle Harold."

His "gags" and Ad libs and pleasant handling of the Ladies has made his Meet the Missus program over WBBM at 3:30 p. m. daily, Saturday morning at 8:45 one of the outstanding daytime programs out of Chicago. Perhaps his best known and loved show at the present time is his "Sinclair Quiz" show over WBBM Saturday night's from 9:45 to 10:15.

One of the things he is best known for, in his handling of contestants on audience participation shows, is that he is always kind, never sarcastic and has never been known to embarrass anyone over the air.

Was for three and a half years a Professor of Speech at Northwestern University at the Evanston campus and has had a great deal to do with the entrance into radio of aspiring young folks and the shaping of their careers. His students and exponents of the Isbell method of broadcasting are associated with radio stations from coast to coast. He is a pioneer in the field of "Naturalness Before the Microphone."

Some of his outstanding shows in the past have been: The Doghouse, NBC Network, Chateau Hogue, Mutual Network, Laugh Line, Columbia Network; Spelling Bee, WBBM and WGN, Pet Peeve Court, WGN, American Radio Warblers, Mutual Network and many more.

LAUNCH MID SUMMER PAPER DRIVE IN FRANKFORT

A mid summer paper drive will be held in Frankfort Wednesday, Aug. 15 by members of the Victory club. Plans were made at the meeting held Monday evening at the home of Henry Heisner. The old model T fire truck will be used for the pick up and paper should be tied in bundles and placed at the curb. Proceeds are used for the benefit of local servicemen as well as organizations connected with the war effort. Next month the young people will again mail packages to members of the armed forces overseas and later to those in the States.

CAPPEL-WINKLER NUPTIALS

The wedding of Mrs. Irma Strassenburg-Cappel to Mr. Peter Winkler of Tinley Park was solemnized in the parsonage of St. John Evangelical church, Mokena last Saturday evening, with Rev. William J. Riemann officiating.

The couple was attended by Mrs. Hilbert Strassenburg of Mokena and Mr. John Winkler, brother of the groom. They will make their home near Tinley Park.

N. J. Geuther Life Long Mokena Resident Dies

Nicholas J. Geuther, aged 67 years a lifelong resident of the Mokena territory, died at his home in Mokena last Friday about 12:45 following a lingering illness.

He was born June 16, 1878 about 3 1-2 miles east of Mokena and lived on the farm until twenty years ago when he moved to Mokena.

February 27, 1901 he was united in marriage with Miss Lottie Hohenstein. To this union five children were born.

Surviving are his wife, two sons Clarence, Chicago, Robert, Mokena three daughters, Mrs. Roy Barnes New Lenox, Mrs. Robt. Gilmore Mokena, Mrs. Earl Cutler, Palos Park, nine grandchildren; three brothers, Geo, Edw. and Otto and one sister Mrs. Mary Fickeworth.

Funeral services were conducted at the Immanuel Lutheran church in Mokena Monday afternoon with the Rev. A. W. Gode officiating. Interment was made in the church cemetery.

The deceased was employed as a guard at the Joliet penitentiary for many years.

WORK ON MOKENA DRAINAGE LINE STARTED

Davidson & Doctor of Orland Park have begun work on the new Mokena south side drainage project. The State Highway Department has made a cut thru the Wolf Road pavement and a reinforced concrete drain tile has been laid beneath the pavement. The project is being held up this week waiting for more tile.

MOKENA FACING POST-WAR BUILDING BOOM

Mokena will experience a big building boom in the post war period from present indications. According to reports 64 new residences are to be erected in the new subdivision on the South side of Mokena which formerly was the Mokena Mineral Springs farm. A building already on the premises has been thoroughly remodeled and has been sold according to reports.

Much building activity is in prospect in the Bartlett subdivision on the southwest side of the village. In this sector 16 new buildings are being contemplated. At present several new brick residences are being erected. Another new brick residence is also to be built in the north west Bartlett subdivision. Quite a number of small homes have already been built on what is known as Circle Drive on the site of the old Mokena dance pavilion grounds.

DOG NUISANCE

Half starved and diseased dogs are roaming around the east side of Mokena and at night they keep the residents awake with their howling, yapping and barking which continues almost all night long. Owners of these dogs live right in the neighborhood and should be ashamed to inflict such a nuisance on their neighbors. It should not be a surprise to find a few dead dogs some morning.

ORLAND LEGION POST PICNIC RAINED OUT; TO BE HELD THIS SUNDAY

New Mokena Community Fire Dept. Gets Charter

The following letter has been sent out by the new Mokena Community Vol. Fire Dept. regarding a special meeting of its new Department to be held next Tuesday evening at the Mokena school gym:

Dear Friend and Pledgee:

The first annual meeting of the newly organized Mokena Community Volunteer Fire Department is being called Tuesday, August 14 at 8 p. m. at the Mokena School gym.

As a state charter has now been obtained we are now in a position to receive your money on the pledges thereby qualifying you as a member entitled to vote. At the first annual meeting it is necessary for the members to approve a set of bylaws for the organization.

It will then be necessary after by laws are approved to elect directors and a Fire Chief to represent all members in the purchasing and care of its equipment and funds.

Money may be deposited at the Mokena State Bank in the name of Mokena Community Volunteer Fire Department, or if more convenient may be paid at the Cooper and Hostert Garage in Mokena, Edward Marshall, in the vicinity of Marley or can be paid prior to the meeting at the School gym which will be open for the purpose at 7 p. m. August 14.

The following notice has appeared in the list of Not for Profit Corporations to whom charters have just been issued by the State of Illinois:

Mokena Community Volunteer Fire Dept. The corner of Neithamer and Third, Mokena, John Scarth, Everett J. Cooper, Harold J. Cooper To purchase and own fire fighting equipment and to operate and maintain a fire department. Cor. John Scarth, corner of Neithamer and Third, Mokena.

The Gus Zeigler property on Lincoln Highway in New Lenox in which Rube Tart is operating the New Lenox Tavern has been sold to Herbert Bruffs who expects to take possession about Sept. 1.

TRANSFERRED TO MOKENA

Harvey Frick, who has been the Rock Island depot agent at New Lenox has been transferred to the third track assignment at the Mokena depot. His place at New Lenox is being filled for the time being by Mrs. Esther Ingalls of Joliet.

BUMPER OAT CROP NETS 400 BUSHELS FROM THREE ACRES

The oat crop in this section is reported the heaviest it has ever been. At the Lester Sayers farm in Alpine 3 acres yielded 400 bushels. The crop was combined last week. Many farmers are now combining the crop in the field, while others prefer the threshing method.

In spite of cold weather and a late start the corn crop promises a good yield at that. Mostly hybrid corn is raised here.

ROCK ISLAND PREPARING FOR LOT OF ACTIVITY AT MOKENA

The Rock Island has a big work crew at Mokena rewiring the interlocking plant, laying new steel rails and preparing for the construction of the new Rock Island depot to be erected south of the present depot. It is understood the interlocking plant at Mokena is to be abolished and all the work being done by this plant now will be handled from the M. C. tower in east Joliet, by means of electrically operated switches so that trains can be operated on both tracks in either direction or passing around each other on any section of the road between Joliet and Blue Island.

MOKENA V.F.W. FAMILY PICNIC SUNDAY

The Wm. Martin Post No. 725 to V.F.W. and Auxiliary will hold their annual picnic this Sunday, Aug. 12 at Glenn Peterson's "Grand View Farm" on Maple Road Mokena.

Pot luck dinner will be served at 5:30. Each person attending is to bring their sandwiches and a covered dish to pass. Games, entertainments and all good things that go with a picnic is on the program.

Come and spend the day, "Down on the Farm." If it rains, it will be held in Hatch hall, Mokena.

NOTICE

Starting Saturday August 11 the H and S Feeds and the Tinley Park Coal and Feed Stores will close at 6 p. m. on Saturdays instead of 9 p. m. as in the past.

Frankfort Board Abolishes Special Tax On Trucks

At a meeting of the Frankfort village board Monday evening, members voted to repeal the ordinance which required trucks delivering food stuffs into the village to pay a special tax. There was much controversy over this ordinance at the time it was drawn up when some merchandising companies refused or neglected to pay the specified fee. The license was to have been due Sept. 1.

The street and ally committee has completed a survey of the village and will notify property owners who have not as yet made repairs on projecting slabs of sidewalk which endanger pedestrians.

A committee has been appointed to investigate the drainage ditch on the west end of the village limits to determine the cause of flooded basements during heavy rains. If the committee decides the ditch needs deepening, property owners who use this ditch will be obliged to stand the expense of the operation.

Ice cream parlors are to be closed at 1:00 a. m. as well as the taverns, and juke boxes are not to be played after 11:00 p. m. according to the decision of the board.

The hiring of a policeman to take the place of Mr. Weischelberger, who moved to California last month, was discussed. Many cases of reckless driving have been reported as well as unnecessary noise created by young people who are on the streets until the morning hours. Parents are asked to co-operate in keeping children off the streets or a curfew will be considered.

The smoke nuisance from EJ and E trains was under discussion. Railroad officials have answered the complaint with an offer to co-operate if residents on the south side of the village will report the number of the engine the direction it is traveling and the hour it arrives at the station, to any member of the village board.

Village president Geo. Sangmeister issued a final notice to dog owners who have not paid the tax required. The collection of the fee will be made by the County assessor and the fee will be doubled.

Due to the Labor Day holiday, the next meeting will be held Sept. 10.

MOKENA MINISTER ATTENDS PASTOR'S INSTITUTE

Wm. J. Riemann, pastor St. John's Evangelical church, Mokena, was among the 120 delegates from 21 states attending the 14th annual Pastors Institute at the University of Chicago July 30 to August 3.

The five day conference featured the problem of the returning veteran and the power of the Christian faith for the present age as the central themes. Bernard E. Meland, newly appointed professor of constructive theology at the University, was the principal speaker for the morning sessions.

Highlight of the afternoon programs was a series of five panel discussions on the veteran and his adjustment to postwar employment, his home, the community, his handicaps, and the church.

Also featured on the institute agenda were: worship services, workshops and refresher courses of study.

The institute, which was founded in 1931 by the divinity school of the University of Chicago, the Chicago Theological Seminary, Meadville Theological School and the Disciples Divinity House, was held again this year under the auspices of the four groups.

SAVES LIFE OF WOUNDED MAN

A bronze star decoration was awarded recently to Pfc. James H. Hirsch son of Carl Hirsch of Chicago Heights, for evacuating a wounded man in the minimum of time and without further injury from the battle front in Germany shortly before V-E Day.

A holder of the purple heart for wounds suffered at Munich, Germany, March 19, Pfc. Hirsch assisted in the evacuating of the wounded man despite the fact that he was subject to intense enemy mortar fire the citation revealed. "Pfc. Hirsch lifted the man to his back and proceeded thru the German fire to a forward first aid station."

Pfc. Hirsch has been overseas since November of last year and has been in the army two years. He served with the army infantry. His brother Richard, was killed in an airplane crash at Waco, Texas, last fall while training as an air cadet.

FILL IN OLD TINLEY DEPOT SITE

The Rock Island has sent out two carloads of cinders to Tinley Park to fill in the old depot site.

Mrs. Dora Tilsy of Marley Passes On, Aged 81 Years

Mrs. Dora Tilsy, widely and well known Marley resident, died August 6 at the home of Henry Tilsy in Orland Township.

She was born in Oakwood, Milwaukee County, Wisconsin May 4, 1864. December 11, 1889 she was united in marriage with Louis Tilsy of Orland township who preceded her in death June 14, 1938.

They resided in what is now the Henry Tilsy home until 1908 when they moved to Homer and resided in the old Tilsy home until 1924 when they moved to Marley where the deceased has since lived.

Surviving are one daughter Helen of Marley, one sister Mrs. Mary Nimmaman of Hale's Corner, Wis., one brother John Holm of Sturtebant Wis. and a host of friends.

She was active in the work of the Marley Baptist Community church for many years.

Funeral services were conducted Thursday afternoon from the Sonntag Funeral home in Joliet with the Rev. Paul Saunders, pastor of the Marley Baptist community church officiating. Burial was made in the Brooks cemetery in Homer township.

ST. JUDE'S NEW LENOX PLAN PAROCHIAL SCHOOL

The St. Jude parish in New Lenox has plans under way for the construction of a local parochial school in the post war period. Funds are already started earmarked for the new school. The proceeds realized from the annual parish picnic held last Sunday will be added to this fund. About 600 chicken dinners were served at the parish picnic last Sunday.

BREMEN VFW TO HOLD CARNIVAL IN TINLEY

The first annual Carnival sponsored by Post 2791 Veterans of Foreign Wars and twelve home town Organizations will be held at Saenger Hall and Grove, Tinley Park, Sept. 1, 2 and 3. The entire proceeds of the Post and their Auxiliary is to be donated to the Bremen Township Veterans club, 17147 Oak Park Ave., an Organization Meeting Hall and Club room open to all Veterans of World War I and II.

The money is to be used to help clear the mortgage and make improvements, so that our boys of this war will come home and have a place to meet and fraternize. Being ex-servicemen, we know how important such a meeting place is, and what it will mean to our Buddies, when this war is over and they return home for good. We feel and hope every one for miles around will attend and give us their support.

There will be games, rides, good food and dancing every night. Sunny's Orchestra will be here the 1st and 3rd. Guy Colby, famous WLS Barn dance caller will be here Sunday, Sept. 2.

So don't forget the date, we will be seeing you at the Carnival Sept. 1, 2 and 3.

Swanson started the game for Tinley an was relieve by Lloyd in the early part of the game. Orland plays a retired country team next Sunday at Orland for the Boys in Service.

Mokena To See Colorful Spectacle

All the committees of the Mokena Civic Association who have charge of the forth coming homecoming are very active these days getting ready for the big event.

The big affair is to open on Friday night, August 24 and will continue thru to Sunday night, August 26. A big variety of old and new games have been provided for as well as various concessions.

The Miller Amusement Co. of La-Grange will furnish the rides and a very fine array of talent has been procured for the entertainment part of the event and special features will be presented each night with Jimmy Hart of Joliet as master of ceremonies. There will be dancing on Saturday and Sunday night with music by the Bert Beatty orchestra of Blue Island.

The high light of the entire three day homecoming is scheduled for Sunday afternoon Aug. 26 when a military parade will be held with the drum and bugle corps of neighboring Legion Posts participating. This will be a very stirring and colorful feature.

L. S. James recently engaged the services of Norma Lee Browning, a special feature writer on the Chicago Tribune staff to compile the history of Mokena and also engaged the services of a staff photographer of the Chicago Daily News to take pictures of local scenes and old time residents which he has had printed in a souvenir booklet. Mr. James is presenting these books to the Mokena Civic Association and they will be on sale during the homecoming.

The Civic Association would like 10 girls to go to Frankfort and New Lenox to sell chances. Automobile transportation will be furnished and a substantial cash award will be given to the girls for each book sold.

All girls who would like to do this work, should see Mr. Schlacks at his office at once.

The following Joliet stores have a ready set merchandise for the special door prizes to be awarded at the Mokena Homecoming each nite:

Fred S. Pratt, Inc., The Eagle, Will County Cleaners, Straka Cleaners, Peter J. Lennon Co., Boston Store, Dinet an Co., Fitzgerald Furniture Store, Kline's Dept. Store, Sears Roebuck, Al Baskin.

TINLEY GIRL CALLS FOLKS FROM ENGLAND

Excitement ran high in the E. A. Moss home in Tinley Park Sunday, August 5, when an overseas phone call was received from their daughter Lt. Marianne.

The tone and clearness of speech was as if it were a local call. Marianne is well and doesn't expect to be back in the States until after the first of the year.

This call was arranged for five weeks ago and time was set for Aug. 5 at 3:00 o'clock our time. The call came thru New York at 5:30 for 6 minutes time. It is the first time in 16 months that her family has heard her voice, as she sailed for England a year ago April. Marianne says hello to all her friends.

FORGING AHEAD WITH PLANS FOR CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION

All committees concerned with the planning of the Centennial celebration in Tinley Park are making great strides in their endeavor to make this celebration a great success.

In connection with this celebration a parade is being planned with as many old time vehicles as is possible to get. More details will be published from time to time. Don't forget the dates, October 5, 6 and 7.

ANNOUNCE LINEUP FOR ORLAND BENEFIT BASEBALL GAME

Where Seeing Is Not Believing

This peaceful village isn't—it just doesn't exist—look again, closely this time. You can see that the houses only look like houses and the trees are strictly imitation. About the only real things here are the girls, Suzette Lamoreaux and Elinor Offenbach, who use a "safe" catwalk and stay off the chickenwire farmland of this elaborate camouflage which has been built to protect a vital B-29 plant from threat of possible Japanese air raids. This is the first photograph of this camouflage project—the top of a factory!

USS Santa Fe, Cruiser With a Record

In picture at left a destroyer transfers wounded men from another ship to the USS Santa Fe (right) for treatment after an action in the Pacific. This cruiser has an enviable record in the Pacific war. She has taken part in many major engagements and never lost a man in action. Above: A striking photo made from the bridge of the Santa Fe as the cruiser rode out a typhoon, while operating with a fast carrier task force in the South China Sea.

Vienna Comes Back to Life

Once gay Vienna is grim as her people, who saw war at close hand, return to her ruins. The city, so bitterly fought for, is again coming to life as the citizens come plodding back with their possessions piled high on hand carts.

First Witness Testifies in Petain Trial

The first witness called to testify in the historic trial of aged Marshal Henri Petain in the Palais de Justice in Paris, Paul Reynaud, stands at left (arrow) as Petain, seated, right, cups his hand to his ear to hear better. Reynaud resigned as premier of France when the country was toppling in 1940.

Make History

Happy honeymooners, after the first American wedding in retaken Austria, are Lt. David Palowsky of Chicago and American Red Cross Worker Betty Ann Goit of Philadelphia, Pa. Stationed in England, Mrs. Palowsky flew to Austria in the plane of Major General Taylor.

HITLER IN PATAGONIA

It may take a long time to find out whether Hitler and his bride Eva Braun escaped to Patagonia. The country is a series of vast Nazi-owned ranches, where German is spoken almost exclusively and where Hitler could be hidden easily and successfully for years.

The ranches in this southern part of Argentina cover thousands of acres and have been under Nazi management for generations. Because of absolute German control, it would be impossible for any non-German to penetrate the area to make a thorough investigation as to Hitler's whereabouts.

Along the coast of Patagonia, many Germans own land which contains harbors deep enough for submarine landings. And if submarines could get to Argentine-Uruguayan waters from Germany, as they definitely did, there is no reason why they could not go a little farther south to Patagonia. Also there is no reason why Hitler couldn't have been on one of them.

Note—On December 15, 1943, this column reported that "Hitler's gang has been working to build up a place of exile in Argentina in case of defeat. After the fall of Stalingrad and then Tunisia, they began to see defeat staring them in the face. That was their cue to move in on Argentina." The same column also cited chapter and verse regarding German-trained officials who ruled the new Argentine dictatorship. At San Francisco, Nelson Rockefeller and Jimmy Dunn insisted that the U. S. A. recognize Argentina.

Note 2—If it ever comes to identifying Hitler, Dr. Robert Kempner, former German police official now living in Lansdowne, Pa., has the answers. Kempner, who was in charge of the investigation after Hitler's beer hall putsch, says that Hitler's right thumb is abnormally long, his right ear pointed on top, and his mouth is very receding. Kempner has turned over his data to U. S. authorities.

MYSTERIOUS PEACE FEELERS

It's being kept very hush-hush, but something important is brewing behind the scenes regarding peace with Japan. Highest officials won't say a word about it, not even to some of their cabinet colleagues.

However, peace feelers which have come from the Japs have been much more than feelers—despite Secretary Grew's denials. One of them was debated by the combined chiefs of staff for more than a week. It proposed that the Japs withdraw from Korea and Manchuria and all China if (1) they could keep the emperor, and (2) they would not be invaded.

Meanwhile, Joe Grew and the army and navy have prepared a directive outlining the minimum terms we would accept from the Japs. This is one of the most highly guarded documents in the government. However, it can be stated on high authority that the Grew peace plan would permit the Japs to retain Emperor Hirohito.

It can also be stated that there is considerable difference of opinion inside the administration regarding the Grew memorandum, and some of his colleagues inside the state department, including Assistant Secretary Will Clayton and Assistant Secretary Dean Acheson, are vigorously opposed.

The whole situation is in a state of flux, and anything can happen overnight.

INSIDE JAPAN

⊠ Jap workers are now being drilled for home defense at noon hours, some even using pointed sticks as spears.

⊠ The Japanese railroads are being torn to pieces by B-29s. Rail junctions are clogged for days before traffic can clear through them.

⊠ Jap prisoners taken in Burma, Indo-China and the Dutch East Indies haven't the ghost of an idea as to what is happening in Japan. They can't believe that U. S. forces are steaming close to the Jap mainland, still believe the Jap navy will reopen supply lines to the South Pacific.

⊠ There is considerable debate inside the U. S. high command regarding the necessity for landing in China. Some think a Chinese invasion is necessary to protect our invasion flank when we land in the main Jap islands. Others believe a Chinese invasion would only use tight shipping and result in unnecessary casualties. The easiest way to aid China, they argue, is to defeat Japan quickly, not get bogged down with a long fight on the Chinese mainland.

⊠ The entire Jap administrative system has broken down. The Japs have now decentralized their government so every area has its own war production board, its own local defense system, even its own local tax collections.

⊠ We have also mined Jap harbors so Jap merchant vessels can hardly get through. . . . Despite the claims of cleaning up northern Luzon, stiff fighting continues. The Japs are beaten but they don't know it. They are still making things tough for MacArthur's men—despite official communiques.

Newspaperman Stuff:

Add Things I Never Knew Till Now: In 1812 a newspaperman named Nathaniel Raunsavelt was taken into custody for refusing to divulge the source of his information about the secret activities of some politicians. . . . He was threatened and cajoled but stood firm. . . . Thus was established the principle of the reporter's duty to protect his news source. . . . The first American newspaper was discontinued by authorities because it published some gossip about the family troubles of the King of France.

Heywood Brown was a skilled exponent of the raptorial retort. He directed some of his most devastating arguments against Huey Long. . . . He once accused Huey of "murdering the truth." Long promptly shrieked for a retraction. . . . Brown replied: "Huey says that he never murdered the truth. That's because he never gets near enough to do it any bodily harm."

Along similar lines there's the classic about the small town gazette which conducted a vigorous campaign against the town council. . . . One of their yarns was headlined: "Half the Town Council Are Crooks." . . . The outraged politicians demanded an apology, and the editor promised to run one. . . . Next day the daily carried this headline: "Half the Town Council Are Not Crooks."

About a century ago the press was in its Mother Hubbard stage. . . . Namby-pambyism was rampant. Editors took a longtongued view of the news. This sidelight illustrates their ultra fuddy-duddy attitude: One gazette front-paged an apology to its subscribers because a reporter had used the word "trousers" in a yarn when he should have used the word "unmentionables!"

Tiffs among newsboys nowadays belong in the taffy-pull category when compared with the journalistic slug-fests during the James Gordon Bennett era. . . . Bennett was physically assaulted a half-dozen times by opposition editors who had been clawed by his barbed-wire editorials. . . . But Bennett refused to dilute his potent attacks against competitors. He merely reported the brawls on his gazette's front page and reaped added circulation. . . . The anti-Bennett journalistic barrage also blasted his family. The slanders finally drove his wife and children out of the country. They moved to Europe and made infrequent visits to America, while Bennett continued his free-swinging style of journalism.

Joseph Pulitzer's N. Y. World set journalistic standards few newspapers have equalled. Yet Pulitzer arrived in America a poor, friendless, semi-illiterate immigrant. He spent all his spare time educating himself. . . . His enlightened opinions on the subject of newspapers are always worth absorbing. . . . Frixample: "What is everybody's business is nobody's business—except the journalist's. It is his by adoption. But for his care every reform would be stillborn. He holds officials to their duties. He exposes secret schemes of plunder. He promotes every hopeful plan of progress. Without him public opinion would be shapeless and dumb. Our Republic and its press will rise or fall together. An able, disinterested, public-spirited press, with trained intelligence to know the right and courage to do it, can preserve that public virtue without which popular government is a sham and mockery."

Hollywood has depicted foreign correspondents as overgrown Rover Boys. . . . It has created the impression that these newsboys have a glamorous occupation. Actually they have a difficult, perilous task with few rewards. . . . O. D. Gallagher, a British correspondent, dodged bombs and bullets, and traveled 100,000 miles in three years for his news stories, which readers forget five minutes after reading.

This is the wisest counsel for columnists we have come across: "Get around town—find out what people are talking about. Give your readers a little daily jolt on something they are gabbing about at home, perhaps, and can gab about some more. Controversial stuff—so they can argue. The big idea is this: Make half of them happy and half of them sore."

Reporters aren't as hard-boiled as the legends would have you believe. . . . When President Wilson made his gruelling cross-country tour (in an effort to gain the support of Americans for his world peace plans) he was broken in body but not in spirit. . . . Reporters who accompanied him were aware that he was sacrificing his life for his ideals. . . . As Wilson made his final stirring plea for world peace, newsmen listening to his eloquent address openly wept.

Thunderhead

MARY O'HARA
W.N.U. FEATURES

THE STORY THUS FAR: Thunderhead is the only white horse ever foaled on the Goose Bar ranch in Wyoming. He resembles his great grandsire, a wild stallion called the Albino. His 13-year-old owner hopes Thunderhead will develop into a racer because of his remarkable speed. Plans for entering him in a fall race meet are uncertain, however, because Thunderhead is difficult to manage. Rob McLaughlin, Ken's father, has to sell some of his horses to raise cash. They bring poor prices. At the auction in Denver Rob meets an eastern horse buyer, who tells him of opportunities at Doc Horner's sales in Pennsylvania. Rob ships 48 horses to the sale. Howard, Ken's brother, goes east to school.

CHAPTER XVIII

Rob was trying to make himself heard. "If you will have it," he said, "I lost my shirt."

"That's what he was saying to Charley," insisted Bess Gifford. "And I can't see what they go on raising horses for."

"Just for the fun of giving 'em away," said Charley, "or seeing 'em lose on the race track."

"Did you really, Rob?" asked Genevieve Scott.

"I did," said Rob grinning. "Who could have done it but me? I hit that sale with two carloads of horses just when the Argentine polo players were unloading their stuff before they left the States. Their horses sold for fabulous prices. American horses sold for a song."

Nell sat very still. That was the way he had chosen to tell her. Easier on him than to tell it seriously when they were alone together. Easier on her too.

Rodney Scott hit his head with his fist. "And he owes me money!" he exclaimed.

"Owe you money!" scoffed Rob, "and how many others! But I'm serving you all notice. No bills going to be paid!"

Nell's eyes widened and flew to Rob's. Was it that bad? It couldn't be—Surely, even if he had had to sacrifice the horses for the lowest prices, with two carloads, there would be enough realized to pay their bills—

Her eyes held a definite question. For the first time Rob met her gaze directly and his hard expression gave her a definite answer. Her eyelids fell. It was true. A disaster. But she didn't care. Money—what did it have to do with them?

While the hilarious and senseless talk criss-crossed the table, Nell listened to the music. An orchestra and Arthur Rubinstein were playing a Rachmaninoff concerto. The broad, impassioned crescendos entered into her blood. So men could feel that way too. It had been composed by a man. It was being played by men. It was the way she felt. Was it the way Rob felt too?

At some time during the evening someone announced that it was snowing, and the men went out and closed the windows of their cars. Gus kept bringing in logs for the fireplaces and bowls of glogg. It was too late and the weather was too bad for anyone to think of driving back to Laramie that night. Nell went into the downstairs bedroom to be sure there was oil in the lamps. Striking a match and shielding the flickering wisp of flame, she suddenly saw another hand resting on the table before her. She could not mistake that hand—the hard power of it—the significance—

The flame went out. The hand closed around hers, completely engulfing it. Her hand was lifted and the palm was kissed twice, then dropped.

Trembling all over she found and struck another match. She was alone in the room.

She lit the lamp and stood trying to pull herself together. She looked at the palm of her hand as if she could see upon it the imprint of that violent caress which had been able to turn all the blood in her body into fire.

She would stand there until her trembling stopped and her heart quieted down.

She looked at her hand again and again. She laid it upon her cheek. She wondered if, when she returned to the living room, the mark of it could be seen reflected in her eyes, on her lips, in her smile, in everything she said, for the kiss continued to burn in her. She could not get it out.

In the morning the men were up early, digging out their cars and putting on chains, while the women got breakfast.

They left immediately after, and Rob paused to kiss her and say—this time without even a glance into her eyes, "I've got to go back to Laramie with them—some business to attend to. I'll be home soon. I'll wire you, and you can drive down and get me."

The past week had been almost as hard on Nell—on appetite and nerves and sleep—as the weeks before, and she was thin and strained. But she dressed very carefully in a six-year-old suit of green tweed and a felt beret of the same shade. The fever that was in her lit her face with color and quickness. Her iris-colored eyes darted in every direction. Her lips were tremulous. She laughed a great deal. When she took off her jacket and sat there in her thin close-fitting yellow sweater she looked like herself again, bright and young. Rob had very little to say. She had to make conversation and did not know how much she dared ask. "Was it true—about the horses—what you told them at dinner the other night?"

"Yes. I couldn't have chosen a worse time."

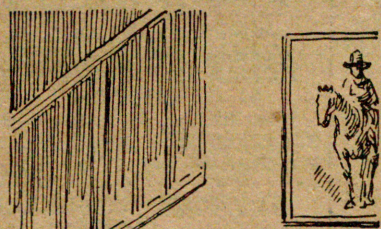

"I'm sorry, Rob." She hesitated and dropped her eyes as she said it. "About our debts too? That we can't pay them?"

"We can't pay them."

"And the five-thousand-dollar note?"

"Not that either. That's what I've been doing this week—getting all these things settled. Extensions on the loans and notes, arrangements with our creditors."

This week perhaps, she thought as she cut her lamb chop, but what about last week and the week before? And why couldn't you have been living at home, driving down here in the daytime to attend to banking business as you always have before? But none of this worried her since Rob's visit of a week ago. As long as he loved her—That minute in the dark when he had taken her hand and kissed it! And, too, his absence was explained by the fact that the sale had been a failure and he dreaded to come home and tell her so. There you are, simply sitting back and waiting for the crash—so that you can pick up the pieces. She couldn't blame him.

"I have thought of something we could do to make the ranch pay."

"Tell me about Howard," she said, since he had no intention of talking about the sale. She didn't know yet what the size of the check had been. Wasn't he even going to tell her that?

While he talked about Howard and the school, her mind was divided into several parts, listening, pursuing its own course of reflection and analysis, and observing closely.

It wasn't only the hand that had made her sure again of his love. It was having found Gus mending the sleigh in the loft over the stable. And he confessed that Rob had brought it from Denver in the truck and that it was to be a present for her, and that he was to say nothing about it.

Not only the hand and the sleigh, but the monkey tree too. Riding one afternoon, she had come upon a big monkey tree around which a trench had been dug.

So! He had been doing things for her—thinking of her pleasure—all the time he was neglecting her and nearly killing her with unhappiness and anxiety. She almost burst out laughing. She almost said, How exactly like you, Rob! But Oh, how—how could all this misery and unrest be wiped out between them! How could they get really married and at peace together again?

While she was observing his appearance and thinking about that she told him of Ken's trip to the "Valley of the Eagles," where he had found Thunderhead, and seen the Albino and his herd of mares.

Dressed in one of the well-cared-for tweed business suits which he wore so well no matter how old they were, and sitting opposite her at the table in the Mountain Hotel grill, he seemed merely like someone she knew. Waves of almost delicious impatience went through her every few minutes. What a horrible state of affairs—that you did not feel even as intimate and at peace with your husband as you had when you were engaged to him. Married all these years, a sixteen-year-old son, and again filled with the excitement and passion and frustration and fever of the very first days—only much worse.

It was not only his aloof manner; there was a deeper change in Rob. His face was hard, he kept his own counsel, he held her at arm's length—all that she could understand. But something baffled her. There had been some blow upon his spirit and it had struck him down. Some of his vital flame was quenched. That sale! She had to bend her head over her plate to conceal her face as she vividly imagined the agony it must have been to him as one after the other of his cherished horses went under the hammer for a fraction of their worth. And they were the accumulation of many years of grueling work. The ranch was stripped now of all except the young stuff and the band of brood mares.

"Will you be able to buy more brood mares?" she interrupted herself suddenly.

"No."

"A new stallion?"

"No."

How soon should she tell him? Should she tell him now, so that they could discuss it while they were driving home? How should she begin it? Rob—I've been thinking. And I've got an idea—

She stole a look at his face and decided not to tell it now. He looked so—how exactly did he look? Not bitter today. No—nor as angry as he had been before he left, but hard. And very much on guard. That could only be against her. And determined—what was he determined about now? Perhaps just to keep on punishing her. He always said when he got angry he was angry at himself, not her. But even if that was so, it amounted to the same thing. He simply oozed ugliness and it disturbed everyone around him.

"Rob, I've been thinking. And I've got an idea."

Dinner and a highball had mellowed him a little. He put down the periodical he was reading and looked at his pipe and discovered that it had gone out. "What about?" he asked.

"Well—about our finances."

Rob hunted for a match. "What about 'em?"

"Well—I really think that I've thought of something we could do to make the ranch pay."

"When did you think this up?" asked Rob, pausing in the act of lighting his pipe to look at her.

"This week, since—since you were here the other night and said that—that the sale hadn't paid—the way you expected it to."

"Oh! So you thought you would step in and save the pieces!" Nell felt consternation. Was it going to seem like that to him? She was silent.

"Well, let's have it," said he with forced joviality. His blue eyes were staring at her over his pipe, and it made her remember Ken's words, "Dad's eyes are the fiercest of all."

"Shoot!" he prodded her.

"Well—it really began with something you said some years ago."

"Ah! Kind of you to remember that! But don't bother to break it tactfully to me, Nell, let's hear what it is."

"You said that the income tax man said that the only ranchers in Wyoming who made money were dude ranchers. And then you said, And he knows." She glanced up at Rob questioningly, hoping he could not see the fine nervous trembling that shook her body.

"I remember. Go on."

"So that made me think of having dudes."

"On this ranch!"

"Yes. We had talked about it a few times already, years ago, you remember?"

"And you always said it would kill it as a home for you, if we did," reminded Rob.

"I know I did." Nell plodded doggedly ahead. "I always hated the idea. But—if we were in trouble—if you needed money—it seemed to me, Rob, I should not let my personal inclinations stand in the way."

She looked hesitatingly at him, and away again. His face was full of anger—rage really—and it was shocking to have to look at him.

"And so," said he in his best sardonic manner, "you simply decided that I was a complete flop. Had failed beyond recovery. And that you had better give up all hope of retaining the thing you love the best—your home. Give that up, make this place—that I have broken my heart trying to make beautiful for you—the camping ground of any Tom, Dick and Harry that wants to squat here—"

Nell looked at him indignantly. "It's not fair of you to put it that way. It would only be a dude ranch in the summer time. In the winter it would just be our home as it always has been. And what if I did have the notion that I didn't want to have any dudes here? People can change their minds. And if we need the money, and this would make the difference between being able to pay our bills and not being able to I would be a wash-out if I could not adjust myself to a different way of living for a few months every summer." Her indignation rose. "It's disgraceful to be in debt all the time. I'd rather do anything than that!"

"And you imagine," said Rob in the same sardonic manner, "that you could make the ranch pay with summer dudes?"

"Yes. And that's what the income tax man said, didn't he?" "People talk about 'taking' dudes. The real word would be 'getting' dudes. Most ranchers in this state would be glad to 'get' dudes if they could. How would you go about getting them?"

ISAAC'S TESTIMONY TO GOD

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 26:19-33.
GOLDEN TEXT—Blessed be the Lord God, the God of Israel, who only doeth wondrous things.—Psalm 72:18.

A man of peace in a war-torn world may seem to be a bit out of place, but he assuredly is not if the peace he has and promotes is the peace of God.

Our world has seen anew a demonstration of the awful results of the philosophy that might makes right. Violence and bloodshed have been man's way of asserting his supposed or assumed rights. One could hope that we are now ready to recognize that we need a new viewpoint, that patience and meekness are not weakness, that kindness and love are Christian virtues worth emulating and cultivating.

That result can come only if men will recognize Christ as the King of their lives and nations will receive His Word as their law. Let us proclaim His truth and the gospel of His grace anew, and win all we can to Him.

Isaac was a man of peace. He was a rather ordinary man, one of the common people, but his life is both interesting and instructive. He had come through varied experiences of victory and defeat before the time of our lesson. Fearing a famine, and apparently not trusting God at the moment, he had gone down from the promised land to the country of the Philistines, there re-digging the wells which his father Abraham had dug. The result was that he prospered. Ere long, however, envy on the part of his enemies taught Isaac that one may expect

I. Strife in the World (vv. 19-21).

Isaac had prospered, but he was still out of the promised land, and while he was in the land of Philistines he could expect no permanent peace.

We are in the world. We long for peace, and would throw all our influence and service into the cause of bringing a righteous peace to the troubled peoples of the world. But let us not be misled by that desire into the support of unscriptural and impossible peace programs. This world is a sinful world, and as long as that is true, there will be strife and war.

Our business in such a world is to preach the gospel of grace, winning men to Christ, that they may become men of good will. Isaac was such a man, willing to yield even what seemed to be his right, rather than cause contention.

Undoubtedly there are times when one must defend his name and his possessions, but all too often those who do "stand for their rights" have wrecked homes, churches, and nations, and have gained nothing but an empty victory.

The peace of this world is temporary. Is there then no real abiding peace and joy?

II. Joy in God's Fellowship (vv. 22-25).

When Isaac came up into Canaan, the land which God had promised to him, he found real peace and an abiding joy in renewed fellowship with God. Even so, the Christian man and woman who will step out of a spiritually destructive fellowship with the ungodly world and come over wholeheartedly into the spiritual Canaan of full consecration and separate living, will find true peace and satisfying communion with God.

III. Testimony in Right Living (vv. 26-31).

These men were wicked men, even speaking falsehood in their claim of friendship toward Isaac (v. 29). Now that they perceived that God was continually blessing Isaac in spite of their repeated injustice toward him, they decided it would be well to make a covenant of friendship with him. Even those who follow the way of war and aggression cannot deny the effectiveness of true Christian testimony.

Observe also that by his patience and kindness, Isaac ultimately made friends out of his enemies. "It is better to turn enemies into friends than to beat them, and have them enemies still." And so this man with the patient, self-sacrificing spirit brought peace not only to himself, but to those about him, because he believed and trusted God. "When a man's ways please the Lord, he maketh even his enemies to be at peace with him" (Prov. 16:7).

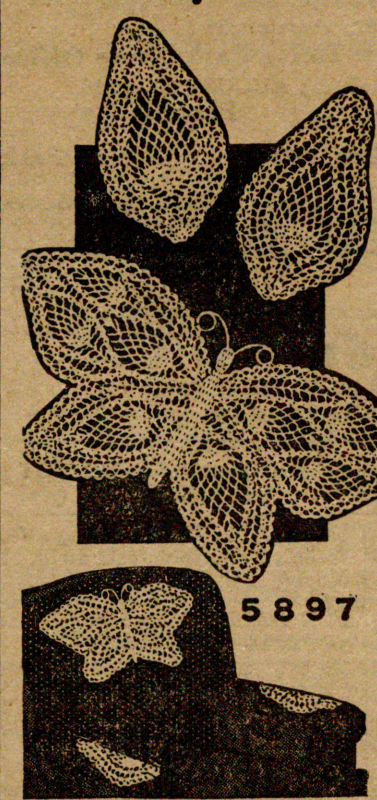

IV. Blessing in Service (vv. 32, 33).

The thing to do when the selfishness of others is about to cause strife is to go and "dig another well." If we will do that, we will find that God has been there ahead of us and prepared a rich flow of fresh water with which we may refresh and encourage ourselves.

Isaac's men said, "We have found water," and he then named the place Beersheba, which means "the well of the oath," referring undoubtedly to God's fulfilled promise to bless him. He had found the way of peace, fellowship and blessing, because he had gone God's way.

THERE'S no business institution more thoroughly American than the General Store.

Yet, do you realize that America is not even self-sufficient enough to keep that General Store running efficiently and prosperously?

For instance, its delivery truck was made in America; but 300 products, from 56 countries, went into its making. The telephone over which the orders come is American-made. But 18 of the telephone's important materials came from outside the country.

The coffee, the tea, the sugar, the tin in the cans, the cocoa and chocolate... these and many more of the things the store buys and sells came from overseas. Take them away and business languishes, becomes more difficult to operate. Take them away, and the community's standard of living declines, life itself becomes less pleasant.

No country can build a fence and hide behind it these days. For lasting prosperity, as well as for durable peace, we must cooperate with the rest of the world. Truly, planes, radio, rockets, have made of this shrunken earth, one world.

Cooperation means getting along even with peoples whose beliefs do not jibe with ours. It means contributing our share toward world order. It means making the effort necessary to understanding. It means every citizen must accept the responsibility of making international cooperation work.

You can do these things:

First, get and keep yourself informed about the specific proposals for peace and international cooperation which are now before us.

Second, interest your friends in these questions. Get them discussed in groups to which you belong.

Third, write what you think to your Congressman and Senators, to your newspaper. Declare your self.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES
The subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, August 5, was:

"LOVE"
The Golden Text was:

"We have known and believed the love that God hath to us. God is love; and he that dwelleth in love dwelleth in God, and God in him" (1 John 4: 6).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible:

"Beloved, let us love one another: for love is of God; and every one that loveth is born of God, and knoweth God. He that loveth not knoweth not God: for God is love" (1 John 4: 7, 8).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy:

"The starting-point of divine Science is that God, Spirit, is All-in-all, and that there is no other might nor mind,—that God is Love, and therefore He is divine Principle. To grasp the reality and order of being in its Science, you must begin by reckoning God as the divine Principle of all that really is. Spirit, Life, Truth, Love, combine as one,—and are the Scriptural names for God. . . . People go into ecstasies over the sense of a corporeal Jehovah, though with scarcely a spark of love in their hearts; yet God is Love, and without Love, God, immortality cannot appear" (pp. 275, 312).

Finds Ancestral Home of Grandfather In Germany In Ruins

When Cpl. Sherwin Liess called at the News-Bulletin office last week, he came to pay us a visit and to thank us for sending the News-Bulletin to him, which he received every week with few exceptions, all the time he was in North Africa, Sicily France. He also wants to thank the Mokena VFW Auxiliary who co-operate with us by paying the postage on these Mokena Servicemen's papers, and the Mokena Women's Service Club for their many gifts, and cards sent to him while he was overseas.

Cpl. Liess, age 36, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Liess was born in Mokena and at the time of induction into the service in September 1942, was living in Harvey, Ill. where he and his wife were making their home.

He trained in this country for nine months with the Anti Air Force Gun Battalion before he sailed on Easter Sunday on the USS George Goethals for Oran, Africa.

"Oran is quite a large city, very dusty, and it gets 125 degrees during the day, but the nights are cool", said Cpl. Liess. He stayed in Oran for three weeks where his group joined Patton's then 7th Army and Clark's 5th army. "Gen. Clark is a real man" Sherwin said.

Their next move was by truck to Ain Temouchent, N. Africa where they trained for another month and again moved by truck to Tunis where they stayed until after the invasion of Sicily. Tunis is a very hot and dusty city. They lived in pup tents there Sherwin helped in the plotting of the planes courses.

Leaving Tunis, they sailed for Palermo, Sicily and then for Naples where they stayed six months. It was in March, 1944 when they sailed again for Corsica where they protected the Harbor Bastia and airfields. It was November the same year his group went to Marseilles, France and landing there changed from the AAF to Ordnance. This gave them repair work on everything from jeeps to half tracks. Their next move was again by trucks to Alsace Lorraine staying several months and moving in January, 1945 with the 63rd Division of the 7th army into Germany, entering at Mannheim.

As they left Mannheim, moving constantly farther into Germany, they went thru Worms, where Sherwin's grandfather John Liess was born. That lovely city now is all in ruins. John Liess was a notary public and treasurer of the Village of Mokena for many years. The Hugo Neithammer's are living in his former home. Sherwin said he knew his grandfather, if he were alive today, would never approve of the action today of the German people, but also said here in Germany was the first place, in all his travels where the people and cities were clean. His group travelled extensively thru out south central Germany and were at Hardheim when VE day came, and they really celebrated. At Hardheim, they were living in houses and their cooks put on a fine dinner in a German restaurant for part of their celebration.

It seems that holidays played quite some part in Sherwin's travels, for again on a holiday July 4 they left by truck for LaHarve France where they boarded the USS Wakefield and sailed for Cherbourg, France to pick up more homeward bound men leaving Cherbourg July 20 and landed in the U. S. A. at Boston July 30 where bands greeted them and the populace gave them a rousing welcome.

Cpl. Liess is enjoying a 30 day furlough at the end of which time he will report to Camp Grant.

He said, with a twinkle in his eye, he had been a "good boy" and we noticed his Good Conduct Ribbon, in addition to his ETOW Ribbon which has 5 battle stars on it he also has 5 overseas stripes and he spent 27 months overseas and in all that time he never met one person he had previously known in this country until he boarded the boat for home and was should he meet but a boy he played ball with in Joliet T4 Andrew L. Jonish. Needless to say they were inseparable from there on.

Cpl. and Mrs. Liess are spending much of their time with his parents who conduct the Service Station at the junction of Wolf Road and South west highway. While her husband is in service, Mrs. Liess is living with her mother Mrs. Cora Lundin in Harvey.

FRANKFORT

By Ada Lambrecht
Telephone Frankfort 2822

A large barn on the Wm. Schoen farm south of Frankfort on Route 45 was completely destroyed by fire Sunday evening at 7:30 when it was struck by lightning during a severe storm. The Frankfort Fire Dept. responded to the call and saved near by buildings. The Monee department was also called but was not needed. The barn was partly filled with new hay and a quantity of old hay. A cow was stunned by the bolt but recovered. The blaze was visible for several miles.

Doris Hinspeter entertained the Happy Hustlers 4H club at her home Tuesday evening. Wilma Mark presided. The secretary's and treasurer's reports were read by Shirley Weichbrodt and Faye June Oetter. Mrs. Duronda Crall, Will County Home Adviser was present to inspect the dresses sewed by the girls. She also announced the County Achievement Day at the Joliet Township high school August 9. Refreshments were served. The next hostess will be Carla Haugh on August 7.

Mrs. E. H. Koerner returned from a six months stay with her sister and brother in law, the Wilbur Myers at Los Angeles, Cal. Mr. Myers who underwent a major operation is improved. Mrs. Koerner also attended the silver wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Larson, former Steger residents.

Members of the Youth Fellowship of St. Peter's Evang. church held a devotional meeting at the church Sunday evening. Faye June Oetter led the devotions. Plans were made for a trip to the Indiana Dunes on Sunday, August 12. The group will meet at the church at noon and bring dishes for a potluck dinner.

The Methodist Youth Fellowship will hold an outing at the dunes on Sunday, August 19 leaving the church at 9:00 am.

There will be no services at the Frankfort Methodist church the last two Sundays in August when the pastor Rev. L. E. Winter will be on vacation.

The Green Garden Methodist Youth

Fellowship will meet at the church Tuesday evening August 14.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Holl entertained Frankfort members of their club at their home in Joliet Saturday evening. Following a picnic supper pinocle provided entertainment with honors for scores going to Mrs. Harold Scheer, Ralph Fehland, Burton Breident, Orval Schroeder and Mrs. Holl. The Fehlands will be the next hosts. The day also marked the birthday anniversary of a member, Leroy Mager.

SHIPMENTS OF DDT

ARRIVE SOON

The Lake-Cook Farm Supply Co., of Tinley Park, Illinois announces today that they will soon receive first civilian supplies of DDT powerful new insecticide.

Most essential users of DDT, including farmers, fruit growers, dairy and cattlemen will be the first to benefit from the limited supplies, the announcement said.

By next spring, householders and victory gardeners under present plans will be able to purchase the insecticide.

Pennsylvania Salt Manufacturing Co., large wartime manufacturers of the remarkable new insect pest killer, say that civilian DDT will be supplied in four different forms: as a dust or spray for large agricultural users, beaches and resorts; as a household insect spray and as a household dusting powder both to control flies, ants, mosquitoes, roaches and other pests. It will also be incorporated into garden insecticides, possibly in oil or water base.

DDT, first discovered 71 years ago by a German scientist, has been in practical use for a little more than 2 years. Termed by Army authorities, as "the war's greatest contribution to the future health of the world", DDT has so far performed its greatest service in combatting insect borne tropical diseases and epidemic carrying lice. Used in giant spray guns, atomizers and in tiny chemical bombs in battle areas, the new insecticide eliminates insects over a wide area for a month or longer. A single pint-sized chemical "bomb" is sufficient to kill all the insects in 150 pup tents or 50 bombers.

Described as "one of the most promising new discoveries for U. S. Agriculture" DDT owes a large share of its present development to the work of U. S. Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine and state experimental stations. It will be used on a mass scale in agriculture, spread in dust form by airplane and atomized by variations of Army smoke screen and chemical fog makers. DDT will also be used to reduce the insect population over wide areas of seashore and summer resorts for as long as several weeks. It is expected to perform a similar job in insect proofing households for a long period after one or two applications. It is fatal to nearly every known insect from bedbugs and lice to Japanese beetles, codling moths and cotton boll worms.

In the WPB announcement which released DDT for civilian use, Siedert A. Rohwer, Assistant Chief of Entomology and Plant Quarantine stressed the potency of DDT and warned industry and the public that "there is a great deal to be learned about how to safely use DDT from the standpoint of hazard to the user the consumer of products on which residue may occur, the effect it may have on the soils and the whole balance of nature in terms of beneficial insect and wild life."

Off the Runway

Civil Air Patrol, Squadron 613-3
by 2nd Lt. Erlyne Conel

If you are on the lookout for clean, well managed airports, if you are within flying range, or merely a "ground flyer", Prosperi airport should be on your list. For your records: Prosperi Airport is 148 acres in size, four runways, ranging in length from 2100 to 3500 feet. In summertime you can land anywhere on the entire field with complete safety! The altitude is 65 feet. Ample car parking space with many vantage points for witnessing airport activities. The large, well kept hangar houses a dozen or more planes, which include six planes used for student instruction. The flight office is comfortable and attractive and features a study room, complete with blackboard and everything for ground flying whenever the ceiling is zero, or after student flight. The important whys, hows and wherefores of maneuvers are fully discussed in this room.

Airport personnel include genial Ed Proseri, Manager, and Frank Cresto. Both are highly rated instructors and both are Lieutenants in Civil Air Patrol. You will be welcome at Prosperi Airport!

The following Cadets will leave on August 18 for two weeks training at Chanute Field: Don Leturno, Ray Olson, Richard Van Dyke, Alvin Sutherland, G. Thompson, Kieth Lyrla, C. Klienkecht; Harold Alexander, Kenneth Sill, Lyman Anfield and E. Kinner.

Here are excerpts from a letter received from Pvt. Chas. Krueger former Squadron 613-3 Cadet Commander, now in the Army. "I am finding the instruction I had in CAP very useful, and on most subjects I find all I need is a good review. Civil Air Patrol is of great assistance by giving pre-military training. I want to take this opportunity to thank the members of Sqdn. 613-3 for the wonderful training they gave me." Pvt. Krueger's address is Co. C 60th Inf. Tng. Bn. Camp Walters, Texas. Thank you for your letter, and the best of luck to you Charles.

To Alvin Sutherland and Lowell Frank who made their first solo flights in Cubs 11 and 66 respectively, we extend congratulations and a "Welcome Up-stairs".

Pvt. Buddy Ogden visited Rubinkam Airport recently while on leave from Camp Truex, Wis.

Civil Air Patrol offers to men and women the chance to learn, free of cost to them, Aviation Ground School subjects, Military Courtesy and Drill, Morse Code and Radiotelephony, and the chance to participate in all Squadron activities. If you are interested in Civil Air Patrol either as a Cadet or Senior member, immediately contact Lt. Walter Wolak, 17549 S. 66th St. Tinley Park, phone Tinley Park 347, or Capt. Neil Kingston, Commander of Squadron 613-3, Room 201 182 E. 154th St. Harvey, phone Harvey 97. If you have questions to ask write me in care of this column.

That's all for now.

Chicago and Northern Illinois

Industries locating in this area have these outstanding advantages—

Railroad Center of the United States... Served by 22 trunk line and 17 belt, terminal and industrial railroads—within overnight reach of 50,000,000 consumers.

The "Great Central Market"... Retail and wholesale trade of more than eight billion dollars annually.

Financial Center... More than eight billion dollars of financial assets available to business.

Adequate Postwar Labor Supply... Skilled and unskilled, for diversified industry and construction—best record for good labor relations.

2,500,000 Kilowatts of Power... Plentiful supply for industry, home and farm.

Abundant Gas and Oil... Large-volume pipelines direct from country's greatest sources.

Great Inland Port... The harbors of the Chicago area normally handle more water-borne traffic each year than does the Panama Canal.

Great Food Producing and Processing Center... In the heart of the nation's richest agricultural lands.

Leader in Iron and Steel Manufacturing... Chicago Industrial Area ranks high in the manufacture of iron and steel products.

Tremendous Coal Reserves... Short haul from great central bituminous fields.

World Airport... For national and international air transport.

Geographical Center of U. S. Population... Has gradually moved westward—now located within this area.

Good Government... Complete and efficient community services.

Good Living... Fine home communities, shopping centers, recreational facilities, schools, colleges, hospitals and churches.

These are some of the advantages that make Chicago and Northern Illinois pre-eminent in the industrial future of the United States—the first consideration in a choice of industrial relocation. As an aid to business, agriculture and industry, wherever located, we have established a department to assemble and make available factual data concerning this area.

In carrying forward this work, we will cooperate fully with all other agencies interested in the progress of Chicago and Northern Illinois. You are invited to make use of the services of this department. Communicate with the TERRITORIAL INFORMATION DEPARTMENT, Marquette Bldg., 140 South Dearborn Street, Chicago 3, Illinois—Telephone: Randolph 1647.

PUBLIC SERVICE COMPANY OF NORTHERN ILLINOIS

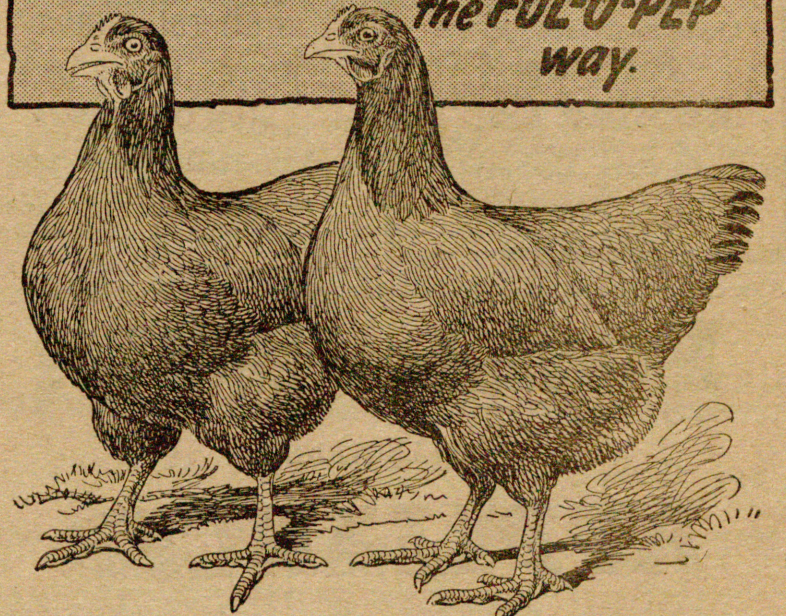

The advertisement shown here is one of a series that will appear in national magazines and newspapers that circulate throughout the country.

In reading this and succeeding advertisements you will see that their purpose is to further the industrial progress of Northern Illinois.

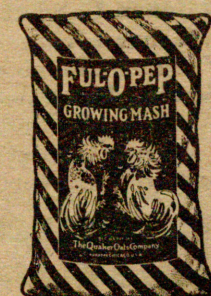

Northern Illinois communities primarily interested in business and industrial development will share directly in the results of this promotional program. Other communities, whose interests chiefly center around residential development, are bound to reap the collateral benefits which are invariably derived from the broad growth of industrial activity in the Northern Illinois area.

Meanwhile, our Territorial Information Department will welcome the opportunity to be of further service by cooperating with the various local organizations working toward the future progress of this community.

MOKENA

Twenty-four members of the Women's Guild of St. James United Church, Chicago, former parish served by Rev. and Mrs. Wm. Rieman came to Mokena for a picnic on the lawn of St. John's parsonage last Wednesday. Because of the hot weather, the plans were changed and the lunch was served in the basement of the church. The outing was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

Rev. and Mrs. Wm. Rieman had as their week end guests the Misses Janet Sjogren and Marie Malinske and doctors Joseph May and Robert Rieman, the son, all of Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

Stewart and Bruce Shoop and Russell Geuther left Tuesday for a two weeks vacation at the YMCA Camp Kibbourne, Michigan.

Mrs. F. A. Williams and daughter Donna returned Tuesday from Somerset, Penn., where they had spent several weeks with relatives.

Major J. L. Krusemark, of Minneapolis, Minn., is spending a three weeks leave with his cousin, Mrs. Albert Cappel and husband.

Mrs. Mildred Maue of 159th St. and Wolf Road is a patient in Silver Cross hospital in Joliet since last Friday recovering from the effects of a minor operation. Mrs. Wm. Lowe and Mrs. Lilly Cooper are caring for her children and husband during her absence from home.

Scouts To Go To Camp

The Mokena Boy Scout Troop No. 40, will go on its second camping week of this summer, next Wednesday. The boys will set up their own camp at the Indiana Dunes State Park, where they will live in tents. They will be under the supervision of their Scout Master and Junior leaders.

Donna Bueschel, Corrine Marti, Helen Reid and Norman Olson left early last Sunday morning to attend school and camp at the Bible Institute Grounds, Green Lake, Wis. They will be gone for one week. They had reservation on one of the three chartered buses leaving Chicago for this camp.

A farewell party, which was planned and carried out by Miss Georgia Bennett, was held last Friday evening, in honor of Fred Laffrado, in his home on Wolf road. Games were played and later refreshments were enjoyed. Those present were: Georgia Bennett, Joann and Jack Marti.

ORLAND PARK

by Mrs. S. S. Knox

The Food and Bake Sale sponsored by the WSCS of the Methodist church, held last Thursday at Creer Store was a huge success. The committee Mrs. Earl Reish, Mrs. Ray Doctor and Mrs. Walter Yunker wish to express their thanks and appreciation to the donors who made this sale so successful.

Two weeks ago Mrs. Irving Pronger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Yunker of Palos Park was rushed to St. Francis Hospital, Blue Island for an emergency appendectomy. She is home now and coming along nicely. Mrs. Pronger is the Prudential Insurance Co. representative for Orland Park and surrounding communities and it is hoped that she will be able to continue her work in the near future.

Mrs. Andrew Cure of Palos Park who has been a patient the past two weeks at St. Francis hospital, underwent an operation. She has been released from the hospital and is home and doing very nicely.

Pfc. Don Jones who was a prisoner of war captured by the Germans, was liberated the 13th of May, was back in the United States and home on a 60 day furlough and is now stationed at Ft. Sheridan with the 6th Service Command. He lacks 3 points of being eligible for discharge. Don was a visitor in Orland Park last Sunday.

Cpl. Donald Cleveland left Monday to return to Sheppard Field, Texas where he will attend school in the Airway Traffic Command.

T. Sgt. Warren Townsend is home on a furlough and will return to Poyote, Texas about the 20th of this month.

Mrs. Jack Schussler and children were visitors in Orland Park last week at the homes of Dr. and Mrs. Schussler great grandparents of the children and the Walter Townsends. Jack is serving with the armed forces overseas in the Philippines.

A family party for S. Sgt. Clarence

Creer who is home for a thirty day furlough, was held at the home of his grandmother Mrs. Ben Sayers at Alpine Sunday, August 5.

IN MEMORIAM

Mary Annette Cooper. In loving memory of our darling daughter and sister, Mary Annette, who passed away two years ago August 12, 1943. 'Twas in the early morning hours, As God, was walking through His Gardens, here on earth, He stopped, beside, that of a small white bed And picked, our darling Mary Ann. He said, she will live, more happily In My Beautiful Joyful Land.

HER DEVOTED MOTHER, DADDY AND BROTHER LOUIS

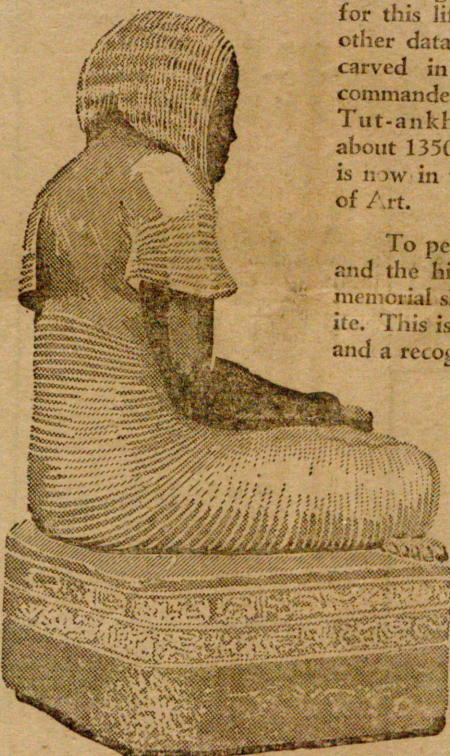

Guests were Mr. and Mrs. James Creer, Arthur Creer, Mrs. Owen Creer and children Carol Ann and Owen Jr. Mr. Edwin Sayers, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sayers, Mr. Gilbert Sayers, Mrs. Howard Sayers and daughter Marcia of Edison Park, Mr. and Mrs. John Sayers, Miss Marjorie Sayers, Mr. Louis Maass of Evanston and Miss Elizabeth Forsman.

Mrs. John Ormond of Decatur surprised the James Creers when she arrived on the early train Wednesday morning for a visit. She visited several other relatives also, then Saturday Mr. and Mrs. Bob Sablotny and daughter Carol Ann of Decatur came with whom she returned to Decatur on Sunday. Miss Lucille Ormond of Chicago, Mrs. Ormond's daughter, also was a weekend visitor around Orland Park.

To Observe Religious Education Week

Protestant churches and other religious agencies of rural and urban areas of the United States and Canada will unite in the observance of the 15th annual Religious Education week, Sept. 30 to October 7th giving emphasis to the building of Christian character. It was announced by Dr. Roy G. Ross, general secretary of the International Council of Religious Education sponsor of the program.

Using the theme, Character for a Free World, 40 Protestant denominations and 183 state, provincial and city councils of churches and religious education will cooperate for community wide observances.

"America today enjoys an enviable position among the world of nations," Dr. Ross declared. "Her place in the life of the world has stemmed from the fact that her institutions, social patterns and policies have been founded on spiritual foundations. Her ability to maintain world leadership will depend upon the quality of her internal life and the extent to which she is true to her Christian heritage."

"Through their local schools and their inter church community organizations for Christian education, the people of each town or city have an opportunity during Religious Education Week to make that heritage live anew in the lives of their children thus bringing life's greatest blessing to them both as individuals and as citizens of tomorrow's world," he avers.

In most towns and cities, Rally Day or Promotion Day on the opening Sunday will emphasize educational evangelism as Church Schools renew efforts to increase enrollment and attendance. Community interest will be developed thru week day programs including launching of leadership education schools on Monday, family nights on Tuesday, inter church fellowship meetings Thursday, and denominational or inter-church youth rallies, Friday. Week's observance will climax on World Communion Sunday with emphasis on "the unifying power of World Christian Fellowship to build a free world."

New Financial Responsibilities for Illinois Motorists

Secretary of State Edw. J. Barrett expects to conduct a campaign of public education to acquaint every motorist in the state with provisions of the new Illinois financial responsibility act before it becomes effective next January.

The new law, according to Barrett represents a major step toward greater safety on Illinois highways, and puts the State among the select list of eleven others which have already adopted similar legislation.

To enable the widest possible understanding of the act, Sec. Barrett said he would distribute pamphlets containing a digest of the measure. These will be issued in the next several months. In addition he plans to call upon groups interested in promoting public safety, and law enforcement agencies, to cooperate in disseminating information about the law.

After January 1 every accident causing a personal injury or damage of $50 or more must be reported to the State Department of Public Works and Buildings, under the new law. The driver must report the accident within ten days even though he is the only person to suffer damage.

"Careful and responsible drivers have nothing to fear under this legislation," Barrett said.

"It is not compulsory under this act to have automobile insurance, but motorists not having insurance coverage are required to provide security covering possible damages after figuring in an accident. Until such security is deposited by a non-insured motorist his drivers license and his license plates are suspended. To cover cases where drivers have been unable to secure insurance, the law provides that the State Director of Insurance can require a company to issue a policy after an application has been rejected by three insurers.

"I am confident this law will do much to close the highways to financially irresponsible drivers. Accident victims will have adequate protection. It all adds up to greater public safety for the post war period in which the motor traffic accident and death toll would unquestionably rise to unprecedented heights without these safe guards."

SNAPPY FACTS

about RUBBER

By drastic planning, production and supervision of current supplies, the equivalent of 900,000 tires was saved in one year in Britain.

By an arrangement of overlapping rubber lips, a zipper has been developed by B. F. Goodrich that effectively seals liquids, air and gases. Now being used in pressure-sealing doors for airplanes, waterproof supply kits and aviation fuel cells, its post-war uses are numerous.

Automatic tire inflation such as now used on the Army's amphibious "Duck" is a post-war possibility for passenger cars.

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

Sportlight
by GRANTLAND RICE

AL WESSON'S story on "Charley Paddock, the Fastest Human," in the "Best Sports Stories of 1944," recalls a Paddock yarn I have never seen in print. The marine captain, killed in a plane crash while on war duty, told me some years ago about the most interesting split-second of his long career as a sprinter.

You may recall that Paddock on several occasions had run the hundred in 9½ seconds. Also that he was the first of the extended flock to cover this same distance in 9.5. I asked him one day why it was that being able to tie the record time and again, he had been unable at some high peak spot to beat it.

So Charley told his story, which makes one wonder whether or not nature hasn't set a certain limit on what the human frame can stand.

"I was running that afternoon," he said, "against a strong field and I know I was never in better condition. I had the feeling before the race that this was to be my big day—the day where I would set a new world mark, possibly around 9½ seconds, or even a shade faster. I had that record mark in my mind before the race was run. I was thinking of it while waiting for the starter's pistol.

"At the bark of the gun I was away faster than usual. At the 50 yard mark I knew I had made the fastest time of my career for that distance. I increased my speed on the way home and at the 75 or 80 yard mark I could see that 9½ or perhaps 9¾ all ready for track history. Then a queer thing happened. At this point I suddenly felt my leg ligaments and leg muscles begin to quiver, as if they were being torn loose from the bone. In that split second I caught the flash that if I continued this same pace I would probably finish as a cripple.

"So I called off any continuance of full pressure and eased down. Even then I again ran the distance in 9½, where I threw away two-fifths of a second in those last 20 or 25 yards. I found later, however, that my judgment had been correct, for I was sore and lame in the calves of both legs for a week. The speed and the stamina were there, but the physical structure wasn't for that pace."

Gehrig's Hard Luck

Much along the same line, which proves again how difficult it is to crack certain marks, is Lou Gehrig's case. Here was another star who came within a half turn of setting one of the greatest records ever written by the ash.

Up to June 3, 1932, only two men in baseball history had ever hit four home runs in one game. The first quadruple blast came from the bat of Bobby Lowe of Boston in May, 1894. Two years later big Ed Delehanty of Philadelphia, one of the great hitters of all time, plastered four out of the park to tie Lowe's record.

Sixteen years later Lou Gehrig had his big chance. Facing the strong Athletic team of that season, Gehrig hit a home run his first four times at bat. He was now on even terms with Lowe and Delehanty, with another chance left. On his final appearance Lou caught one solidly and squarely on the snout. It was the longest of his five hard smashes, but in place of traveling slightly to left or right, the big blow was caught in deep center against the fence.

It was a matter of raw luck that kept Luis Angel Firpo, the Wild Bull of the Pampas, from putting across the greatest ring sensation of all time. Few recall that the ring had been lifted that night at least 2 feet above normal. This move had been made to give the big crowd a better chance to see the fight. The drop from the ring to the press seats was a deep one. I recall saying that I'd hate to have 220-pound Firpo fall across my neck from the lifted plateau.

It so happened that when Dempsey came through the ropes his body fell directly at Jack Lawrence, who instinctively put up both hands to protect himself. If Dempsey had topped a foot to the right or a foot to the left the champion would almost certainly have gone all the way down to the press rail—or at least so far down that he would never have had the slightest chance to get back through the ropes in time.

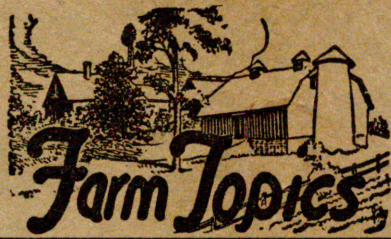

It is by such narrow margins that sport history is often written.

College vs. Pro Football

Greasy Neale, coach of the Philadelphia Eagles, a team that lost only one game last fall, insists that his high-flying Eagles would have beaten either Army or Navy last fall. Coach Steve Owen of the Giants doesn't agree.

"Army had too much youth and speed, plus a lot of power," Steve said.

"We have too much experience—just as much speed and just as much power," Neale counters.

Proper Feeding Will Add Vitamins to Pork

By W. J. DRYDEN

Research work at the Washington state experiment station has shown that it is not only possible but entirely practical to increase the thiamin content of pork with selected feeds.

Sub-deficiencies of thiamin or vitamin B1 constitute the most widespread human nutritional ailment in the United States. Pork is recognized as one of the richest sources of thiamin among the natural and universally consumed foods.

The experiment showed that cull peas properly used in hog feeding will result in pork richer in thiamin. There is no reason to doubt but what special markets may be developed advertising thiamin-rich pork. Iodine eggs, enriched bread, enriched milk and other food products have had special markets developed along this line. At the start, the demand may be limited to hospitals and others who are willing to pay a premium for an enriched pork product.

On a fresh basis, the ham and loin were found to contain the highest amounts of thiamin, followed by shoulder, heart, liver and kidney. The liver had the highest riboflavin, followed by heart, ham, shoulder and loin.

Jeeps for Farming Will Be Available

Postwar jeep at work.

In tests conducted at state colleges on private farms and at the factory, the postwar jeep has been proven superior to the military jeep in most operations.

The new jeep will do about anything that a light truck and a tractor will do. It can be used for delivery purposes, or for plowing or other farm work, such as discing, drilling, logging, harrowing and the various transportation jobs found on the average farm.

Preventing Odors and Garlic Taste in Milk

To prevent the milk showing a garlic or onion taste or odor, it is necessary to follow these rules carefully:

1. Clip the tops with a mowing machine before grass is pasture high.
2. Graze the pasture lightly with young and dry stock.
3. If cows are turned on the pasture immediately after milking and removed four hours before next milking, the trouble will be largely eliminated.
4. After bringing the cows from the pasture, give them a light feeding of dry roughage.
5. Keep the cows outside the milking barn until just before milking time.
6. Cool the milk promptly after milking.

Good Sheep Pastures

Make good pastures the basis of the ration for all classes of sheep, is the advice of sheep experts. Healthy sheep grazing legume or legume and grass pastures and provided with salt and water need no other feed. The pasture season may be extended by using wheat or rye pasture.

If legume roughages are not used, feed liberal amounts of protein concentrates and some extra calcium. Soybean oil meal, limestone will prove welcome additions to fattening lambs on corn silage diet.

Suitable Stand for Milking Goats

They're All Alike

By RUBY PROCTOR

THE train whistled shrilly at a crossing and thundered on through the night. Pfc. John Whitcomb Morely slouched in his seat, his eyes closed, but he wasn't sleeping. He was calling himself all kinds of a fool for inviting the two fellows in the opposite seat to spend a week-end leave with him.

It was just as well, he thought gloomily, that their plane reservations had been cancelled in favor of more important travelers. There wouldn't be so much time. Of course, when he had first asked them, he hadn't realized how queer his home and his folks would look to Pete and Frank.

It had happened in a reckless little burst of gratitude the time they had insisted that he accompany them to their own town to spend a few days. They'd felt sorry for him, he guessed, because he never received any packages, and almost never any mail.

Just that long, official looking envelope once a month with his father's business address in the corner. There was always a check enclosed which he didn't need, but which his father insisted on sending because he couldn't understand how anyone could possibly get by on only fifty-four dollars a month. Usually there was only the check, but sometimes he inclosed a little note: "If there is anything you need, son, just let me know. Your mother is pretty busy these days—Red Cross, selling War Bonds—you know how she loves that sort of thing. She'll write later."

"I know, they're all alike."

Those visits had opened his eyes to a lot of things. Their parents had treated the boys as if they were returning heroes. They had accepted John without question as one of themselves, had gone all-out to show him a good time.

He'd have to think of something to explain why his folks were different. His father would be silent and preoccupied at dinner, if he was home at all, and his mother would be coldly polite to Frank and Pete, and vaguely critical of all three of them. John had had a sick, shamed feeling ever since this morning when he had sent the telegram announcing the change in the time of their arrival.

"What's the matter, John?" Frank asked. "You look kind of sick."

"I was just thinking," John said with false animation. "We'll have to get over to the Servicemen's Center. There's nothing like it. They really do all they can for you."

Pete shook his head. "That's for the fellows without local ties. Your mother will have something planned. I know, they're all alike."

"Yeah," Frank said, stretching, "mothers are all alike."

He'd go nuts, John thought, if they didn't quit saying that. Mothers were definitely not all alike, and Frank and Pete would find that out soon enough.

He'd tell them the truth. He could say it casually as if it weren't important, just an interesting study in human nature. He'd put it something like this: "Mothers are not all alike, fellows, and I can prove it. Meet mine, Exhibit A."

"I don't expect that the folks will be at the station," John said as they moved into the crowded aisle. "It's an awkward hour to meet a train."

"They'll be there all right," Frank laughed confidently.

Surprisingly they were, both of them. John could hardly believe it. His mother kissed him, not caring what it did to her make-up. Good Lord, he couldn't remember when she'd done that! And his dad, gripping his hand hard, and then blowing his nose loudly. This was a bad time of year for colds.

Pete bought a paper as they were leaving the station. "Gosh, fellows, did you see this? That plane we planned to come on crashed!"

Frank sucked in his breath. "Golly, I'll bet your folks were worried!"

John's mother bit her lip and nodded.

Dad mopped his forehead. "We were mighty relieved to get your second telegram," he admitted.

Late that night as the three were undressing Frank said sleepily: "Your folks sure treated us swell, John. The best leave we've had yet. Your mother is really super."

"Yeah," John agreed happily, "they're all alike."
